

Menu des Projets d'Art pour la Route à Travers Paris

(Menu of Arts Projects for the Road Through Paris)

Here is a menu of some favorite arts projects to do together with your group, friends or community for the global public demonstrations on the “Road Through Paris” -- before, during and beyond the global UN climate talks and mass mobilizations in Paris and around the world this Nov-Dec. We will be pushing world governments to agree to a climate deal that's in line with the imperatives of science and justice: keep 80% of fossil fuels in the ground and finance a just transition to 100% renewable energy by 2050. And we will keep building a global movement to make it happen whether or not they listen.

Best wishes and have fun! --David Solnit, North American Arts Organizer, 350.org

RED LINES:

On December 12th, 2015 in Paris thousands will take part in the largest civil disobedience action on climate justice ever, with our disobedient bodies we will encircle the UN Climate Summit with Red Lines. Others may bring Red Lines actions inside the Summit. People around the world will also do red line actions in solidarity. Across the World at the same moment Red Lines will be drawn and actions will be taken. Redlines are the minimal necessities for a just and livable planet

“The red lines idea strikes just the right balance between ‘shut it down’ and ‘do your job’,” says author and campaigner Naomi Klein. “I also think that it is strong enough to grab the narrative, which will be critical if governments try to sell a bad deal as a success.” The idea and image of red lines--as our climate justice movements lines in the sand that must not be crossed is being discussed as a key part of the December 12th mass action.

There are our global red lines that must not be crossed, like "keeping 80% of fossil fuels in the ground," or a "just transition to 100% renewable energy by 2050). What disastrous projects in your region cross your communities red line (fracking, pipelines, oil trains, offshore drilling)? Make your red line:

- * Paint a banner with your do-not-cross-our-red-line on it--with the words either on the red line or above it.
- * Draw your red line on the ground--the sidewalk or streets with chalk.
- * Paint your red line on the street or sidewalk (tempera paint is water soluble and washes off your clothes and shoes). Paint a simple bold brushstroke in red with your "do not cross" words painted above/below or it can be a "street mural" involving lots of people. Make a sketch of what you will paint. draw it in chalk, pour your tempera paint into plastic many containers have brushes ready. It's faster and more fun to have many hands; invite other to paint and have lots of bushes and containers.